AUSTIN, Dec. 18.—(P)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today granted 30-day reprieves to Ira Kelly, and Leonard Aubrey, sentenced to die in the electric chair at Huntsville prison early tomorrow. She had not taken action in the case of Tom Cook, also scheduled to be put to death shortly after midnight.

Kelly, 38, was convicted of criminally assaulting a 13-year-old Seabrook girl, Aubrey, a negro, was sentenced for the murder of another negro. Cook, also a negro, was sentenced for criminal attack on a white woman.

HUNTSVILLE, Dec. 18.—(P)—Ira Kelly, 38, of Houston, exclaimed "God bless the governor" when informed this morning that Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson had stayed his execution 30 days. Kelly, along with two negroes, had been scheduled to be executed early tomorrow.

Leonard Aubrey, 40, one of the negroes, also was granted a stay. The governor apparently had decided not to intervene in the electrocution of Tom Cook, 34, negro, convicted of criminal attack on a white woman.

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 18.—(P)—Four men who had been adrift aboard their crippled seaplane for more than 20 hours in the stormy Mediterranean were rescued at dawn today by the steamer Saint Marguerite.

The heavy snowfall which had hampered the visibility of four ships steaming blindly around the plane in an angry sea stopped during the night.

At daybreak, the St. Marguerite sighted the stricken craft at a point about 80 miles south of Marseille.

The cold and weary occupants of the plane were taken aboard along with the mail carried and the ship steamed for Djerba. At nightfall, one steamship gave

COTTON FARMERS
TO RECEIVE LARGE
ADDITIONAL SUMSCOUNTY AGENTS TO BE AU-
THORIZED TO RELEASE SIX
CENTS ON OPTIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—The farm administration announced today county agents will be authorized this week to release six cents a pound cotton options to farmers who hold options on approximately 2,400,000 bales of government held cotton. It is estimated by the agriculture department that $48,000,000 will be distributed to approximately 600,000 cotton farmers.

The exact date of the release of the options will depend upon the time county agents receive the necessary forms, but Secretary Wallace gave instructions that the money should be disbursed as rapidly as the options were called.

Two courses are open to producers when they receive their options. They may call the options and receive the difference between six cents and the market price or they may execute an "exercise of cotton option and pool agreement" and through arrangements made by the farm administration with the commodity credit corporation receive an initial payment of four cents a pound or $20 a bale on their options.

The administration has completed organization of a "cotton option office" to receive options from producers and supervise the auditing and disbursing of checks.

Producers who desire to execute the option, but not to participate in the "cotton option pool" are to receive a "notice of exercise of option." When this form is executed and received by the cotton option office, a check will be mailed direct to the producer as quickly as the cotton is sold and the optionees claim properly audited.

HAVANA, Dec. 18.—(P)—Havana counted six dead and 13 wounded today in the capital's latest bloodshed and disorders.

More than 100 Spaniards were rounded up and taken to old Cabana fortress during the night. Those who had participated in the outbreaks.

While soldiers massed to prevent new violence, preparations were made to receive Jefferson Caffery, President Roosevelt's representative who will pick up where former Ambassador Sumner Welles left off in efforts to bring a settlement of Cuba's political strife.

Shooting broke out yesterday afternoon with the sacking and burning of the offices of the newspaper El Pais. Firing spread.

Soldiers did not succeed in restoring a semblance of order until nearly midnight. Throughout the night, sniping shots were heard. A mob comprised largely of negroes fired El Pais offices because they considered the Spanish newspaper unfriendly to the government.

Most of those killed and wounded were struck by bullets fired in indiscriminate shooting in and around the El Pais building after soldiers attempted to prevent the mob from entering.

DeMoss has a family, but was alone at the time of the attack.

I. C. C. EXAMINER RECOMMENDS
COTTON BELT BE GIVEN RIGHT
TO ABANDON 72 MILES OF LINE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—An interstate commerce commission examiner recommended today that the Stephenville North and South Texas Railway company, a subsidiary of the St. Louis Southwestern, be authorized to abandon 72 miles of its railroad in Texas.

The company wishes to abandon 41 miles from Hamilton, Texas, to Stephenville, Texas, and 31 miles from Edson, Texas to Comanche, Texas.

Protests against the abandonment were filed by the State of Texas, the Texas Railroad commission, the Waco Chamber of Commerce and municipal and civil organizations at Comanche. The principal towns served by the two branches are Carlton, Alexander, Stephenville, Lamkin, Gustine and Comanche.

The railroad company claims the branches have failed to earn operating expenses. The examiner said that owing to use of motor trucks in the territory there is no reasonable expectation of increased traffic in the future.

In justification of the proposed abandonment, the examiner said in his report, "the applicants represent that for several years the branches have failed to earn operating expenses and that large part of the cost of the branches is owing to the use of motor trucks as a means of transportation, there is no reasonable expectation of increased traffic over the branches in the future."

"The total number of passengers handled over the branches decreased from 5,470 in 1928 to 1,359 in 1932. Local freight traffic handled over the branches amounted to 4,651 tons in 1928, 5,004 tons in 1929, 2,842 tons in 1930, 7,058 in 1931, 4,464 tons in 1932."

WISCONSIN MILLWORKER HAS
FAITH AND WORKS FOR BLIND
WIFE AND NOW SHE CAN SEE

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 18.—(P)—Tom Naylor is a millworker and millworker, as the man in the street might say, are not overburdened with money, even when times are best.

But Tom had faith and devotion and because of it the blind wife he married seven years ago has a priceless Christmas present—her eyesight—and above all the opportunity of seeing her husband and their two children, Mildred, 4, and Laverne, who is almost 8, for the first time.

For 20 years Mrs. Mabel Naylor, 29, was sightless, and without hope of seeing.

But Tom had different ideas. "I knew in my heart," he said, "that she would see again."

So he toiled and he saved from the time the blind woman became his bride, looking forward to the day when he felt medical science should be called upon for help. Then, as Mrs. Naylor said, Tom made her go to the doctor.

Dr. M. B. Fuller of Green Bay recently performed what to Mrs.

Naylor was a miracle. He removed from her right eye a tumor growth that had isolated the optic nerve. A "false pupil" was created above the natural pupil by removing a tiny part of the iris.

"Extremely satisfactory" were the words the medical man used after the operation, but it was more than that for Mrs. Naylor and her husband. She could see the things in her flat after her return home from the hospital. She could see Mildred and Laverne, whom she never had been able to recognize before—except by touch and sound.

Tom was happy, but he would not talk much. His wife whose sight the doctor believes will improve as the eye nerves become more accustomed to their work, however, insisted on telling or his devotion of how he tried to be both a mother and a father to their children, and how he was responsible for the operation.

"If it hadn't been for Tom," she said "I never could have done it, he made me."

MANDS TO PIECES

PARIS, Dec. 18.—(P)—The war chieftains of France, in a secret session attended by General Maxime Weygand and former Premier Edouard Daladier, today decided they were flatly opposed to a rearmament of Germany.

The army leaders met as the superior war council, carefully surveyed reiterated demands of Chancellor Hitler of Germany for increased armaments for his nation, decided adversely against his demands, and prepared to pass on their recommendations to the government.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—(P)—Chancellor Hitler's demand for a bigger German army and more arms for his nation was pulled to pieces today by the Superior War Council of France.

The military body laid the foundations for a flat refusal by France of a permission for rearmament of Germany.

General Maxime Weygand, chief of the general staff of the French army, attended the council.

The ministers of war, navy, and air will discuss the proposed reply before the government sends it to Berlin.

Today's meeting was preliminary to a government decision, as to whether Franco-German talks

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(P)—The National Retail Dry Goods Association announced today it had sent to President Roosevelt the results of a survey showing that many leading merchants believe the recovery drive is gaining ground steadily.

The merchants praised the NRA and expressed confidence it will bring further improvement. "The association is headed by Lewis Hahn. Its announcement said it is a trade group of 4,600 department and specialty stores."

Samuel H. Halle, president of the Halle Brothers Company, Cleveland, said: "We feel the public should retain an open-minded attitude on the NRA as it will take time to properly appraise its benefits."

Since the inception of the NRA, there is noticeable an increase ratio of employment, a lightening of the burden of anxiety and despair so apparent among manufacturers at that time."

Arthur L. Kramer, president, A. Harris & Co., Dallas, "Re-employment, greater confidence and larger weekly awards in 1933 for structural material, negotiations for upward of 13,000 freight cars with other railroad programs maturing, a further flurry in scrap prices, and the expiration of January 1 of all contracts carrying prices lower than those announced for the first quarter."

Steel works operations have been brought, the magazine says to 33 per cent, the highest in eight weeks.

Detroit—Reports of sales, production and employment issued by various motorcar manufacturers during the months in which the industry has been operating under an NRA code, coupled with anticipated business improvement in 1934, were seen in automotive circles today as indicative of continued employment for the industry's workers.

New York—Payrolls increased nearly $800,000 to $37,977,385 in October, the American Iron and Steel Institute reports although production declined about 9 per cent from September.

Washington—Secretary of Commerce Roper says definite signs of world business revival have appeared in the last fiscal year. In a report to President Roosevelt he says also that the depression has been definitely stemmed in the United States.

Chicago—Cudahy Packing company made a net profit of $1,518,765 in its fiscal year ending Oct. 28.

By JAMES COPE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—Government officials have decided after six months trial of the industrial recovery act that they would prefer not to reopen it to amendment at the coming session of congress.

Unless conditions then demand it, consequently, they intend to ask no changes. One exception, however, may develop from the desire of Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.), to get down in black and white the powers of the national labor board which he heads.

The men who have administered the NRA do not consider the law perfect. They believe it contains some inconsistent and even contradictory provisions, but hope these will not prove of sufficient importance to warrant re-opening

FIRST REAL WINTER

ON, BROWNWOOD, COLLE-
MAN AND OTHER POINTS

By The Associated Press.
Sleet, rain and snow last night and today brought the first "bad" weather of a belated winter season to a large area of West Texas.

A light snow fell upon a blanket of sleet at Vernon as the temperature sagged to a minimum of 28 and the first snow of the year fell at Brownwood but melted as it struck the ground. The temperature there dropped from 80 yesterday to 45 early today.

A snowfall described as a hard sleet struck Coleman about midnight, bringing the first moisture in several months. There were fears that some grain damage by dry weather might suffer. On the ground at Electra and an intermittent fall of snow, sleet and rain continued during the morning. At Amarillo, the temperature there also had intermittent sleet and snow.

The weather man predicted that West Texas would be fair tonight and tomorrow, with slightly higher temperatures in the Panhandle tonight. Frost was indicated for the southeast portion of the western half of the state for tonight.

At Amarillo, the minimum temperature last night was 24, but

Heavy Revenues From Liquor at First of Repeal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—The government collected $9,111,175 in liquor taxes during the first 12 days of December.

The internal revenue bureau said today that $3,174,383 was derived from stamp taxes on distilled spirits and wines. Another $5,936,792 was collected on beer or more than 3.2 per cent.

While repeal did not become effective until December 5, officials explained that heavy stamp taxes began December 1 in anticipation of the day and consequently in gauging the first returns, officials took the days immediately preceding repeal.

Other taxes included in the total were $2,126,792 on 3.2 beer, $191,148 on retail liquor licenses, $49,564 on wholesale licenses, and $4,100 on rectifiers.

The tax on beer exceeding 3.2 per cent is $6 a barrel while that on 3.2 beer is $5 a barrel.

1932 and 237 tons during the first six months of 1933.

"Freight traffic handled in interchange with connecting carriers amounted to 22,128 tons in 1932, 23,084 in 1929, 17,087 tons in 1930, 12,653 tons in 1931, 9,423 tons in 1932 and 4,441 tons during the first six months of 1933. This traffic consisted largely of agricultural products.

"Gross revenues derived from operation of the Stephenville branch, allocated thereto on a mileage pro rata basis, decreased from $28,185.05 in 1928 to $10,714.40 in 1932. Railway operating expenses decreased from $83,170.65 in 1929 to $36,632.61 in 1932.

Operated At Loss.

"After deducting certain amounts representing railway tax accruals and point facility rents, the applicants show that the branch was operated at a loss of $60,428.51 in 1929; $51,029.93 in 1930; $44,768.49 in 1931; and $34,346.80 in 1932.

"There is considerable deferred maintenance of the branches. The applicant estimates that the cost of maintaining them in safe operating condition in the future would amount to about $66,000 a year."

The examiner also related numerous instances in which during the hearings at Brownwood, Texas, September 26 and 27, last, shippers objected to the proposed abandonment.

These witnesses, the examiner said, testified that the proposed abandonment would work a decided detriment to their business and cause considerable damage to the grain producers in the territory served by the branches.

disarmament are possible. It was understood the council discussed the actual military strength of Germany, which France has claimed to regard as already alarming.

Chancellor Hitler withdrew Germany from the recent disarmament conference at Geneva and the League of Nations with the demand that Germany be treated as an equal with the right to increase defensive armaments.

The steering committee of the conference decided it would be impossible to conduct direct negotiations through diplomatic channels among the powers involved prior to the reconvening of the arms parity on or about January 15.

One of the main differences of opinion between France and Germany is the French attitude that Hitler's Nazi storm troopers should be regarded as a military force, whereas as Germany contends the uniformed party members are merely party members.

GOVERNMENT GOLD PRICE WAS ADVANCED FIVE CENTS MONDAY; TWO IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS

By WILLIAM L. BEALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—The government jumped its gold price to $34.06 an ounce today for the first upward movement since Dec. 1.

The five-cent increase resumed the upward trend begun when a price of $31.36 was fixed at the beginning of President Roosevelt's effort intended to boost commodity prices by raising gold values.

It also was the first price increase since the disclosure of recent heavy gold purchases abroad, estimated to have exceeded $35,000,000.

This foreign buying was believed to have taken place during the December weeks that the domestic price has remained stationary.

Whether the new increase in the RFC's quotation represented a return of emphasis to the domestic price and a lessening of foreign purchases could not be learned officially.

Bar gold was bringing $32.48 an ounce in London today on the basis of sterling opening at $5.12 1/2 to the pound.

Apparently by coincidence, the new gold price increase followed two group statements relating to the country's monetary and financial condition.

One was a study by the Brookings Institution, holding that the administration's gold purchasing plan can not be relied upon to bring higher price levels. It called for a reconsideration of monetary policies in relation to economic recovery, arguing that monetary uncertainty "sooner or later leads to a deterioration of government credit."

The second development was a demand which would bring all expenditures, both ordinary and emergency, within receipts.

The National Economy League contended the present rate of spending would produce unsound money and estimated the government would close its fiscal year next June 30 with a $4,000,000,000 deficit.

Treasury officials, busy with preparations of the 1935 budget, had no immediate comment on the league's petition to the White House. A mid-December statement of the treasury's condition, however, showed a deficit close to the billion dollar mark and just about equalling the amount of expenditures classified as "emergency."

In five and one-half months of the fiscal year the government's receipts were $1,809,305,475, but $129,254,000 of this was derived from farm processing taxes.

Billion Emergency Expenses.

Expenditures during the same period for ordinary government operations were $1,308,845,807, while the so-called emergency expenditures, including such functions as the RFC, farm credit administration, agricultural adjustment administration, the NRA, the civil works administration and public works, were $909,211,312.

The excess expenditures, or "deficit" piled up in five and one-half months was $908,254,144, or less than a million under the emergency outlays.

The treasury's cash balance was $1,277,807,004, a considerable boost over the preceding day's figure of $988,889,876. Mid-December financing, including the sale of $982,469,500 in one-year securities and the retirement of $727,000,000 in maturities, provided most of this cash increase.

Actual cash outlays by the public works administration came to $152,244,385, only a fraction of the nearly $3,000,000,000 allotment. It was expected the spring months would bring a huge increase in public works cash expenditures.

That, by and large, reflects their satisfaction with the results obtained to date, though it does not mean that all codes now in force are considered satisfactory, or that changes may not be sought in the future through the codes themselves.

Wagner Wants Authority.

Wagner wants the law to insure the workman a really free chance to elect a representative to bargain with his employer; he wants the labor board put on a permanent basis with statutory power to settle disputes between employee and employer.

If it should develop that this can be accomplished by further executive orders, Wagner's plan for legislation may be dropped.

But two or more moves from outside the government are expected for modification of the law. Some one is almost certain to re-introduce a 30-hour work week bill. Congressional sympathizers with business are expected to try for elimination of Section 7A, the clause drawn to prohibit coded employers from interfering with the unionization of their labor.

Hugh S. Johnson, who is going to remain administrator at least until congressional storms are met and death with, has warned against both courses.

He told labor he believed hours would have to be shortened but that a flat 30-hour work week would be suicidal. Industry was pressed to reduce labor benefits under the law, could expect an old equally pointedly that it is "unreasonable" rebound from congress that would give the workers more than they have now, and business less.

Other Attempts Loom.

Another attempt that may be made is to legislate labor and consumer representation on the code authorities. Johnson, fighting more radical advisers in the government, has insisted that NRA means no government by industry itself, with supervision by the government on behalf of all groups.

He is ready to effect some compromise to satisfy both the labor and customer spokesmen—has, in fact, outlined a method whereby "advisers" would help the government member of each code authority in prevention of inequities.

Expectations of serious trouble at the close of the congress were seriously entertained by officials a few weeks ago, but, rightly or wrongly, have now faded, and there is every indication that the industrial recovery unit will seek the help of the congress on all elements for harmony.

happy," Warden W. W. Wald of the penitentiary said. "He shouted at the top of his voice and did everything. He wanted to get out and go to cutting that wood."

Cook heard the news which brought renewed hope to his companions along the row but did not contain any hope for him.

GERMAN WOMEN

"There is great apprehension among women officials, teachers, and employees, about the drastic manner in which various officials of the Reich, the State, and municipalities, are discharging women," ministry instructions read.

"While preference is to be shown to men, in no case where women are dependent upon their work for a livelihood, are they to be dismissed," the instructions stated.

Not that most of Germany's unmarried working women would mind becoming "hausfrauen." But all of Hitler's matrimonial support measures are in vain for some 2,000,000 marriageable women—the nation's surplus of marriageable women over men whose number corresponds almost exactly with the number of Germany's World War dead.

The Nazi regime's slogan of "men first" is having a profound effect on academic life.

Countless university women, after years of preparation, are giving up their careers now because they will have no chance to teach or to practice law or medicine when they finish.

Practically the only fields left open to trained women are nursing and social welfare work. Women workers are being ousted from their almost exclusive trade—ready-made tailoring.

Men are being substituted for instance in establishments making professional uniforms like nurses' and doctor's robes.

They are being paid more than women, but according to an official report, the additional expense is offset by greater male efficiency.

up hope and abandoned the trying search. Soon others followed. More joined in, however, and four ploughed on in quest of the missing signals all night long, while coastal radio stations sought to fix the stricken plane's exact position.

To those who caught the calls along the coast and in the wireless rooms of the searching vessels, Radio Operator Capelin appeared to be the star in the seaplane drama.

While Pilot Kernal and Mechanic Chevillard, assisted by a passenger named Kotival—a world-war flier, battled to keep the craft afloat, Capelin flashed his SOS signal over and over again.

The three members of the plane's crew and their passenger, all Frenchmen, hopped from Marseille on the regular commercial line to Algiers at 8:40 a.m. Sunday.

LEGEND OF NAVARRO COUNTY SCORED DECIDED HIT UNDER DIRECTION MRS. W. K. STEELE

By CHARLTON GUNTER

Many lives in the Southwest and customs peculiar to this section were presented Friday night in the "Legend of Navarro County," by members of the Alumni Association of the Corsicana High School, in a manner that was highly humorous and entertaining and at the same time impressed the audience with the greatness of the legend which has been passed down from generation to generation in this county, and paid tribute to the hardy pioneers that wrested the garden spot of Central Texas from the great wilderness.

Quite remarkably, there was no attempt made to dramatize the early days of Corsicana and vicinity, but instead a cast of over 200 of the lineal descendants of the first residents of this section of the state took the stage and relived the stirring days of other ages. The outline for the pageant was taken from the "History of Navarro County" by Mrs. Annie Carpenter Love, herself a direct descendant of the founders of the county.

Prize for Director.

Much of the credit for the performance should go to Mrs. W. K. (Kathleen O'Neal) Steele, who arranged the pageant, and then took over the thankless role of director and manager for the production. Many a brave and determined woman would have marveled at the ease with which she overcame all obstacles and presented one of the most entertaining and pleasing attractions ever witnessed in Corsicana. It was strictly a review of home events for home people—but it would have been enlightening and entertaining to any citizen of the Southwest. It was Mrs. Steele's first attempt at showmanship, and it was successful from start to finish.

Costumes of other generations from way before ante-bellum times up to the latest in form-fitting swankiness were displayed in the evening's performance and added to its attractiveness. Many Communities Represented.

A large number of Corsicana's neighboring communities within the county participated in the pageant by sending examples of their beauty to join in paying tribute to the founders of the county.

A prologue to the pageant, John W. Carpenter, one of Corsicana's contributions to the greater industrial world, explained that the purpose of the pageant was to pay tribute to the men and women who established the community, and to recognize their other contributions to modern life. He declared that parents today should teach their children to recognize and respect the heritage which has been handed down to them.

Carpenter Relates History.

He related that this county was organized in 1846 and was named for Jose Antonio Navarro, who had been a citizen in the territory for many years and was the first to form a new settlement in that section of the state.

The first episode, "Birth of a New Homeland," showed a small clearing on the edge of the wilderness with a few pioneer cabins in the background and the pioneer housewife, played by Mrs. S. M. Woodward of Blooming Grove, seated at an old-fashioned spinning wheel, while nearby sat a slave Negro, played by Mrs. J. W. Woodard, and an Indian brave. After Camp Fire Girls had presented an Indian dance and song, visitors from another homestead arrived, and the scene closed with that festive occasion.

During the intermission, Mrs. John Ingham entertained the audience with a series of accordion solos that included many of the old favorites. "Yodeling and Diddle," "Dixie," "Nellie Gray," and "Oh, Susanna."

Episode II, "Gifts of the Gods," presented one of the most alluring and beautiful scenes of the pageant. Representatives of the county made a half circle around the stage, with Mrs. J. N. Royall, Jr., and Miss Elise Jester in regal robes mousseline and ermine thrones surrounded by their attendants, at either end and across the center of the foreground were a number of tiny attendants bearing trays on which many of the beautiful and rarest of the natural resources of the county were presented, while four little dancers supplied the entertainment.

In the following intermission, pupils of the Jewell Albritton school of speech and dance were presented.

W. P. McCammon Narrator.

Narrator W. P. McCammon in a prologue to the third episode announced that one of the outstanding problems of the early settlers was those of education and school facilities, and the principal source of knowledge was the tutor or private school. From the first log courthouse built in 1849 until 1881 this general structure was the center for all civic, educational, religious and social activities. Mr. McCammon declared that the first school building was erected in 1881 on the present site of the senior high school.

And then came the school room scene, with Paul Miller in the role of the teacher, representing several of the graduating classes of the high school, bringing tears of laughter from the crowd as they sang their "A-B-C" song. The scene was followed by the old log courthouse, with the old judge, played by Mrs. J. W. Woodard, presiding over the court.

members of the class brought their gifts to the "single" teacher, C. C. Sands and his pet dog also added to the hilarity of the occasion.

Graduation Dresses.

The parade of graduation dresses of the past was a perfect example of the recurring cycles of history, with the earliest almost ragged and faded, and gradually shrinking until they reached high tide in the 1820's and then began to reach toward the floor again and reaching their goal in the 1933 edition. From the cedar trunks and boxes of many of the Corsicana homes these dresses were resurrected to once more dazzle the eye, and bring fond memories to many hearts.

The narrator told the audience that in the early days of Corsicana the citizens regarded a man as half civilized who had no regard for religion, and held their church sessions in the courthouse during the winter months, and in the summer, he expressed a desire that more of the old church bells might be heard on Sundays summoning people to worship.

Much of the credit for the performance should go to Mrs. W. K. (Kathleen O'Neal) Steele, who arranged the pageant, and then took over the thankless role of director and manager for the production. Many a brave and determined woman would have marveled at the ease with which she overcame all obstacles and presented one of the most entertaining and pleasing attractions ever witnessed in Corsicana. It was strictly a review of home events for home people—but it would have been enlightening and entertaining to any citizen of the Southwest. It was Mrs. Steele's first attempt at showmanship, and it was successful from start to finish.

In the fifth episode the American and Confederate flags were presented in the background, with a single survivor of the "Navarro Rifles," Corsicana's Confederate regiment, presented in place of honor, with the announcement that Navarro county was the first in Texas to answer the call of President Jefferson Davis. Then the Gaitty rifles, Spanish-American war entry, were represented by an officer and three enlisted men, and the scene was climaxed with the presentation of the American Legion color guard.

The next episode, "World War Veterans," and the dramatic scene was brought to a close with the sounding of "taps" by the uniformed bugler as a tribute to Corsicana's military dead.

The next episode, "Southern belle" chorus in full costume was presented in many of the old Southern favorite airs adding greatly to the occasion, and climaxed by "Swanee River Rhythm" exemplified by Kay Shell Pinkston.

Social Life Depleted.

The outstanding social event of the '80's was reproduced for the audience in the episode with ten couples stepping to the stately waltz tunes popular in that age, and even the popular punchbowl was present. This episode was climaxed with Mrs. Joel Trimble singing "After the Ball is Over."

The progress made by Corsicana and Navarro county in the years that have passed since the first episode was presented next on a series of posters, neatly lettered and illustrated, borne by little girls dressed in newspaper dresses that reminded the audience that today's modern business houses, a country club, a public library with 25,589 volumes, the State and Odd Fellows Homes, a Y. M. C. A., a well equipped hospital, a population of 60,499, a hotel accommodations, beautiful homes, stately churches, high class county school system, more than fifty factories, millions in real estate, a chamber of commerce with city and county co-operation, a $150,000 courthouse, miles of paved roads and modern newspapers.

The interlude number by Miss Rose Rogers' school of speech and dance was very popularly received, the number being "Randy Rhythms," words and music composed by Mrs. W. P. McCammon, and with Randolph Mitchell at the piano for the number, as eight little misses sang the song and tapped to its lively swing.

In the grand finale, "Texas, My Texas," composed by Mrs. J. W. Woodard, was sung by Chris Roper, and then the whole cast of the production repeated the chorus as the final curtain fell.

HOPKINS ADDS TO TEXAS QUOTA FOR RELIEF WORKERS

WESTBROOK SUMMONED TO WASHINGTON FOR CONFERENCE; MORE AID SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (P)—Harry L. Hopkins, the civil works administrator, said today Texas quota under the program had been increased by a total of 17,000 jobs.

An additional 15,000, he explained, had been granted principally for application in the drought areas, and 2,000 to help solve the problem of school teachers unemployed due to lack of school funds.

He said he was unable to go into details as to the latter program, but it was recalled Maury Hughes, State recovery administrator for Texas, announced here after recent conference that Hopkins had agreed to provide work for unemployed teachers in Texas. Hughes also said Hopkins agreed to advance funds, through the State administration for keeping schools in communities of less than 2,500 population going for their full terms—in cases where tax money is exhausted.

Meanwhile, Lawrence Westbrook, relief and civil works director for Texas, expressed confidence he would be granted an additional allotment of $1,500,000 for relief work, which he requested last night.

White Collar Men To Survey Buildings

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (P)—The federal relief administration has authorized a program for purchase of beef throughout the country, potentially dwarfing all its previous activities in that connection.

Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, said today every State had been offered the plan, and that they may make purchases locally at a price not lower than $1.75 per hundred.

"Of course, there will be some States where the scarcity of cattle would make buying beef locally not feasible. In such cases we are prepared to continue the central buying of beef here," Hopkins declined to estimate how much might be spent in the program, pointing it would depend on whether or not the States generally accede to the plan.

He said, incidentally, prices of cut beef had declined to estimate how much might be spent in the program, pointing it would depend on whether or not the States generally accede to the plan.

EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST WEALTHY BROKER FAILURE

FEDERAL AGENTS AND POLICE SET TRAP BUT EXTORTIONISTS FAIL ENTER

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(P)—Federal authorities tonight laid a trap for a group of extortionists who tried to collect $100,000 from Robert A. Gardner, a wealthy Lake Forest, Ill., broker and former National amateur golf champion, under threat of losing Henry Keep Gardner, his eleven-year-old son.

A trap by five federal agents acting under direction of Melvin Purvis, chief of the Chicago division of the federal bureau of investigation, and a group of Lake Forest policemen last night failed to bring about the arrest of the extortionists. The trap was laid after a dummy package was placed at the entrance of the J. Ogden Armour Melody Farm in Lake Forest, but no one appeared to collect it.

An extortion note crudely written in pencil received by Gardner last Friday resulted in the posting of guards at the Gardner home. The note threatened to take Gardner's son "for a ride" and to "blow up" the Casino Club, "where you're having a party for your daughter Mary" unless $10,000 was placed at the entrance to the Armour place.

The extortionists apparently were in error in their reference to Gardner's daughter, for it is a niece of Gardner who is to have a party at the Casino Club. Gardner, who was a star golfer at Yale and missed the British open title by one stroke in 1920, notified the police immediately after the receipt of the threats. Mrs. Gardner is a daughter of the late Chauncey Keep, well known lawyer who died in 1929 leaving her an inheritance estimated at $1,500,000.

Temple Mayor Offers To Buy Relief Bonds

AUSTIN, Dec. 18.—(P)—The Texas Relief Commission received a message today from W. W. Sellers, mayor of Temple, offering to purchase $10,000 worth of the $25,000 bonds issued by the commission for sale on next Thursday for his municipality.

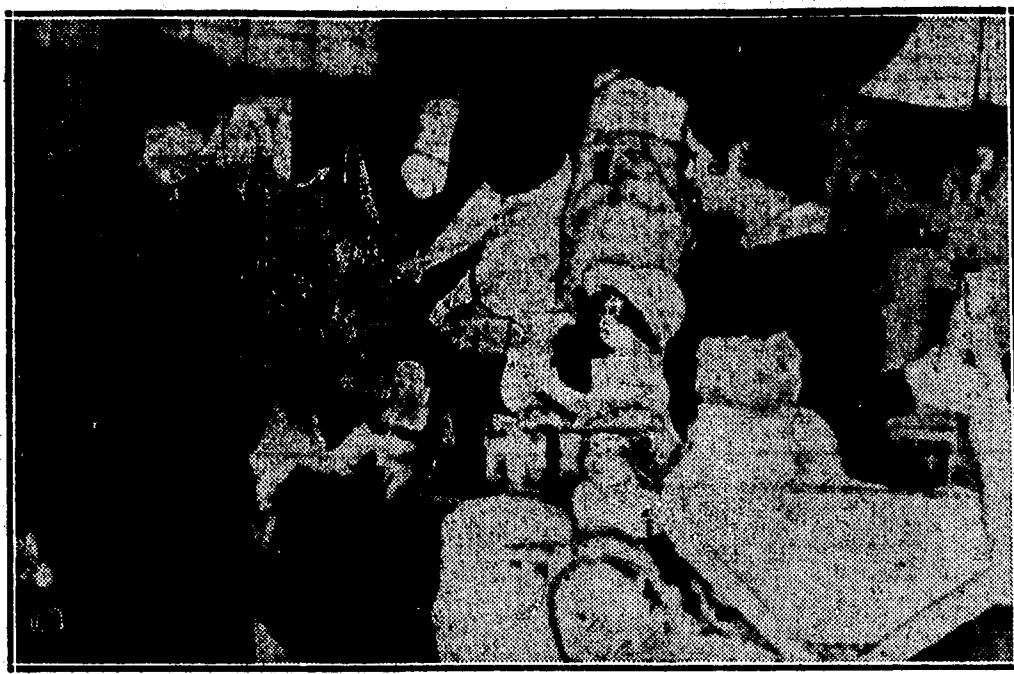

The Dallas Clearing House association previously announced it would subscribe for $250,000 worth of the securities. Banks in other Texas cities are expected to offer to buy some of the bonds. The Temple mayor offered par and accrued interest. The law authorizing sale of the bonds directed that the "not be sold for less than par."

This year the White House is to have a real, old-fashioned Christmas, with a tree, hanging stockings, Santa and everything.

CHINESE LOAN

(Continued From Page One) 75 per cent of China's American cotton imports, under pressure from the Japanese government have refused to buy the loan cotton—thus rendering the Chinese government unable to dispose of it as anticipated.

The Japanese government is not willing for Japanese mills in China to buy loan cotton, they added, feeling that the purchases indirectly would assist the Chinese government's anti-Japanese activities. The dealers said the "stagnated loan" was additionally disrupting the commercial market of American cotton to China by causing Chinese buyers to decline to purchase through this channel, fearing the Chinese government might possibly dump on the market huge quantities of loan cotton. It is not at present able to sell.

The sale of United States cotton to China, the dealers maintained, would be increased if the loan were cancelled, allowing trade to flow through normal channels "unthreatened by the loan."

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE IS MAKING DETERMINED EFFORT TO BRING BACK WRIGHT AIRPLANE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—The Smithsonian Institution today moved to close a long-standing breach with Orville Wright in an effort to bring back to the United States from England the world's most precious aviation relic—the original Wright airplane.

Charles A. Lindbergh, as he sped northward today on the last lap of his 25,000 mile flight, carried with him its request to act as a mediator in the case. As a result of the controversy Orville Wright shipped the original airplane to the British National Museum at London, where it has been on exhibition since 1923. Wright prior to that time had kept the priceless relic in his own possession at his home in Dayton, Ohio, "in the hope that a suitable home for it could be found in America."

He explained at the time he sent the plane abroad that the Smithsonian Institution, "the one institution which seemed to be national enough" in character, was one to which he would not care to intrust the machine.

Observe Flight Anniversary. LE MANE, France, Dec. 18.—(P)—France solemnly celebrated today the 25th anniversary of Wilbur Wright's historic airplane flight at Auvours Field.

Under a 90-mph gale whipping the ocean yesterday, the entire Oregon and Washington coastlines were hard hit, but at Grays Harbor high tides and torrents of rain wrought unestimated damage while 500 persons were rescued from their homes.

From two to four feet of water surged through the business districts and much of the residential sections of both cities were under water. Two thousand homes were flooded to a greater or less extent.

The third successive high tide, one to nine feet, hit the cities at midnight last night, and was backed up still farther by the gales lasting in from the sea. Near noon yesterday, an 11-2 foot tide came in, after another nine-footer the previous midnight.

Capt. J. Persson, commander of the coast guard at Westport, small power craft and fishing boats were used to rescue persons marooned in their homes at South Aberdeen. Highway work was blocked, the main power plant was put out of commission, and a large service station was destroyed by fire to add to the difficulties.

At Cosmopolis 75 families were ordered to leave their homes when the city reservoir dam was feared to be weakening.

Six passengers of a Great Northern train were slightly injured when three coaches were derailed near Grotto, Wash., because of a roadbed undermined by the flooding Skykomish river.

Tornado winds accompanied by snow and rain disrupted electrical lines, broke windows and buildings and broke windows in eastern Washington and northern Idaho Sunday.

Ship Nears Safety.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 18.—(P)—Maintaining headway under her own power, the gale-wracked freighter Henry D. Whitton stood off the mouth of the Columbia river today, after having limped from Yaquina head in one of the worst storms to visit the Oregon coast in years.

The intercoastal craft with a crew of 32 was out of danger her master said, after having been in imminent danger of sinking yesterday.

Charles L. Wheeler, Jr., driven fast aground on the eastern end of Sand Island yesterday by a 90-mile gale, resisted all attempts of coast guard ships to pull her free. The crew of 27 was in no danger.

At Seaside, more moderate weather prevailed over Oregon and Washington as the center of the week-end storm passed inland after having wrought considerable damage.

Lindberghs Start Their Final Hop Home on Monday

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 18.—(P)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, en route from Miami to New York, landed at the Charleston navy yard today at 2:18 p. m.

The famous flying couple was first sighted over Fort Moultrie, and then continued northward, circling the navy yard. Without warning the Colonel then brought the plane to a smooth landing. They did not tie up at the mooring dock until 2:45, and the reason for their stop was not given.

Navy yard attaches had not been advised in advance that the plane was to land. They took them almost 30,000 miles, would stop here, but had been on watch for passage of the plane.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18.—(P)—Headed for New York to spend Christmas at home with their infant son, whom they have not seen in five months, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off from here today on the last leg of their long aerial swing around the North and South Atlantic oceans.

Fully restored following their arrival here Saturday on a 900-mile flight from San Pedro, Dominican republic, the fliers took to the air in their seaplane as a crowd of spectators stood on the docks and waved a farewell.

Whether Lindbergh planned to fly non-stop to New York, or land at some intermediate point, was not revealed by them. They carried sufficient gasoline to take them to their destination—approximately 1200 miles away.

They took off from the International Seaplane base here at 8:48 a. m. (E.S.T.) and it was calculated it would take them about 10 hours to reach New York.

Witnesses before the committee had testified that Dr. Jarrell made representations that employment could be had with the commission in return for contributions toward the liquidation of campaign debts incurred by Jarrell in the 1932 primary campaign.

Several witnesses testified that they had made contributions after being promised employment. A few testified that they had gone to work as commission employees, mostly for brief periods.

Today the committee was in Laredo to take testimony in another phase of its inquiry into reputed sales of state jobs.

Two Upshur and one Kemp county man were mentioned in the indictment. One Upshur allegedly took $225 from J. G. Anderson of Gilmer, the second named the same sum from Water Stewart of Upshur county and the third, $200 from Hubert Brinson.

Investigation Moves To Laredo Monday

LAREDO, Dec. 18.—(P)—The State's investigation into alleged job selling in the Livestock Sanitary department began here today with questioning of eight witnesses concerning their knowledge of payment of money for jobs.

They also were interrogated relative to what was described as an "insurance racket" whereby it was reported they would "stand in good" with the State board if they took out policies with John Callan of San Antonio, brother of Leo Callan, chairman of the board.

Roe Oliver, supervisor of inspectors for Webb county, testified he knew of no money paid for jobs and said he knew of no sale of insurance policies. He declared that Hugh Nixon, investigator, last spring had the inspectors sign affidavits that they had not paid money for their positions.

FINANCIAL MARKETS FAILED TO EXHIBIT ANY EXUBERANCE

High, Low and Close of Main Issues on N. Y. Stock Exchange

By the Associated Press

SMALL ADVANCE IN GOLD PRICE FAILED SHOW ANY MARKED REACTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The stock market had little to drift today, apparently ignoring a 5-cent tilt in the domestic gold rate. The trend was generally lower, although only a few specialties were under pressure and there were some moderate late recoveries. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,400,000 shares.

By VICTOR EUBANK
Associated Press Financial Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Financial markets as a whole failed to exhibit any exuberance today, following the lifting of the domestic gold rate a nickel an ounce, and prices generally were nervous and irregular.

The small tilt of the gold figure furnished little surprise to speculative circles and the inflationary implications of the raise brought no rush for either equities or commodities. Stocks pointed lower with some specialties quite heavy. Grains and cotton were only a little better than even, although silver and rubber were firm. Both sterling and French francs moved up around 4 cents and 5 of a cent, respectively. U. S. government securities sagged and corporate bonds were hesitant.

Extreme dullness characterized share trading. Atlas Tack dropped more than 7 points in addition to its 11 1/2 point loss Saturday. Union Bag & Paper was off 3 and Allied Chemical 2. Other losers of fractions to a point or more included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, General Motors, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Chrysler, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Case, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and others.

Most American government securities were of the opinion that dull and featureless pre-Christmas market sessions could be expected unless some unforeseen stimulus is furnished by Washington activities. Business and industrial sentiment, however, continued highly optimistic for the early part of the year. Trade reviews found that consumers respond to Christmas offerings in all types of retail stores, but exceeding expectations of many merchants who had previously turned a little gloomy following the it-crown after Thanksgiving Day. Sales returns were said to be running substantially ahead of last year.

Curb Drifts Lower.
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The curb drifted irregularly lower today in quiet trading. Further offerings, apparently prompted by recent declines, were sold at moderate concessions. Saturday's close in a number of instances but several specialties, particularly industrials, rallied.

American Superpower traded briskly at lower levels and the stock of the utility shares also was downward. Commonwealth Edison had an early decline of more than 2 points while Electric Bond and Share and American Gas eased moderately.

Metal shares showed mixed changes. Newmont firmed while Wright Hargreaves and Pioneer were about steady. Lake Shore mines was inactive. In alcohols, divergent movements also were noted. Hiram Walker rose today's strong spot, climbing nearly 2 points.

American Cynamid "B" Singer Manufacturing, Garlock Packing, Sherwin Williams and Swift and Co., improved their last week company reports earnings equal to $1 a share for its last fiscal year contrasted with a deficit for the previous period.

WOMAN IS REPORTED LEADER OF BAND THAT SECURED CASH, CASHIER RELEASED

MIDLAND, Ark., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Two men, believed by officers to be father and son, and a stylishly dressed young blonde woman robbed the Midland State Bank of approximately $500 early today and kidnapped the cashier, C. C. N. Finn.

After driving through three miles north of Highway 45 toward Fort Smith, the cashier was released unharmed, and made his way back to Midland, where he notified officers.

Finn was alone in the bank at the time the two men entered. The woman remained outside. One of the bandits, described by Finn as about 65 years old and with white hair, said he produced an old-fashioned pistol and told him it was a holdup. The young man, also producing a pistol, walked behind the cashier and secured the cash.

The woman, described by Finn as about 30 years old, sat in the front seat while the aged man covered Finn with a gun from the back seat.

During the ride, Finn said, the two in the front addressed the white-haired man as "Dad." The young woman appeared to be the leader, he said, but did not carry a weapon.

The stolen money was insured.

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Four bandits in two motor cars, held up a mail truck, kidnapped the driver, Wallace Ford, 20, drove 40 miles to a country church near Liberal, Mo., looted four sacks of registered mail and fled, leaving Ford bound in the church.

Ford was forced to drive to a city park, where the mail was transferred to one of the cars. The robbers drove to the church which they entered through a window. They ripped open the sacks and spent an hour sorting the mail. Letters and several government pay checks were left scattered on the floor.

Ford worked an hour before he freed himself and walked to a farm house, from where he telephoned the Joplin Police.

HOUSTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court sitting here completed today its hearing of a suit attacking the validity of the present Texas oil proration order and the national petroleum code under the industrial recovery act.

The suit was brought by the American Petroleum Company and several other East Texas operators. They alleged that provisions of the national industrial recovery act authorizing the formulation of a code were invalid and that federal agents therefore should be enjoined from attempting to enforce violations of the code.

The plaintiffs charged that the state proration order was not based on the Texas law but was "dictated" to the State Railroad Commission by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

The court made no announcement of the outcome of the case, but attorneys pointed out that a decision usually is not given until two or three weeks after the end of the hearing.

Charles E. Fahy, first assistant collector of the department of the interior, and John T. Tuttle of Washington, general counsel for the petroleum planning and co-ordinating committee, defended the industrial recovery act.

Affected Interstate Commerce Commission attorneys replied that activities of the plaintiffs affected interstate commerce even though they were not directly engaged in interstate commerce and that they therefore were subject to federal regulation.

They contended that congressional delegation of power to the President to formulate codes was a proper delegation.

Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, presiding, wanted to know how the government planned to go in alleging that activities affected interstate commerce.

He pointed out that "this court" previously had held that the production of oil was not an interstate activity, and that the production of excess oil nevertheless affected interstate commerce.

While Fahy was discussing the government's requirement that oilmen file certain reports about their oil, he pointed out that the government had produced a legally binding document which he did not believe the time had arrived that "the American citizen had to constitute himself as a sort of secret police."

"Even in the prohibition era, when things got pretty strong, you didn't go that far," he said.

At another time when Fahy was making additional arguments in an attempt to show that the plaintiffs were subject to federal regulation, Judge Hutcheson remarked that "if the sovereignty of Texas is gone and we're no longer a sovereign state of the union but a branch of the department of interior, you may be right."

Under questioning by Judge Randolph Bryant, Fahy admitted that if the Texas oil production was making a profit, the plaintiffs would be subject to federal regulation.

He believed that Secretary Ickes' allocations would prevail.

HOUSTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court sitting here completed today its hearing of a suit attacking the validity of the present Texas oil proration order and the national petroleum code under the industrial recovery act.

The suit was brought by the American Petroleum Company and several other East Texas operators. They alleged that provisions of the national industrial recovery act authorizing the formulation of a code were invalid and that federal agents therefore should be enjoined from attempting to enforce violations of the code.

The plaintiffs charged that the state proration order was not based on the Texas law but was "dictated" to the State Railroad Commission by Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior.

The court made no announcement of the outcome of the case, but attorneys pointed out that a decision usually is not given until two or three weeks after the end of the hearing.

Charles E. Fahy, first assistant collector of the department of the interior, and John T. Tuttle of Washington, general counsel for the petroleum planning and co-ordinating committee, defended the industrial recovery act.

Affected Interstate Commerce Commission attorneys replied that activities of the plaintiffs affected interstate commerce even though they were not directly engaged in interstate commerce and that they therefore were subject to federal regulation.

They contended that congressional delegation of power to the President to formulate codes was a proper delegation.

Circuit Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, presiding, wanted to know how the government planned to go in alleging that activities affected interstate commerce.

He pointed out that "this court" previously had held that the production of oil was not an interstate activity, and that the production of excess oil nevertheless affected interstate commerce.

While Fahy was discussing the government's requirement that oilmen file certain reports about their oil, he pointed out that the government had produced a legally binding document which he did not believe the time had arrived that "the American citizen had to constitute himself as a sort of secret police."

"Even in the prohibition era, when things got pretty strong, you didn't go that far," he said.

At another time when Fahy was making additional arguments in an attempt to show that the plaintiffs were subject to federal regulation, Judge Hutcheson remarked that "if the sovereignty of Texas is gone and we're no longer a sovereign state of the union but a branch of the department of interior, you may be right."

Under questioning by Judge Randolph Bryant, Fahy admitted that if the Texas oil production was making a profit, the plaintiffs would be subject to federal regulation.

He believed that Secretary Ickes' allocations would prevail.

COMMITTEE RESUMES INVESTIGATION OF STATE DEPARTMENTS

FRIEND OF FERGUSON TELLS OF BEING BARRED FROM
AUSTIN EXCHANGE

AUSTIN, Dec. 16.—(P)—A committee of the Texas house of representatives today resumed its investigation of state departments. It planned to go to Laredo Monday to take additional testimony before writing its report.

Eugene T. Smith, a close friend of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, testified concerning Smith's activities in the bond insurance business since Mrs. Ferguson took office. Smith's name had figured in previous testimony in connection with writing of surety bonds for state officials.

Smith's testimony was largely a complaint against members of the Austin insurance exchange who had prevented him from becoming a member so he could write surety bonds. Smith denied that he had any business connection with Mr. Ferguson.

He said Ferguson is a friend of mine and has been good to me," Smith testified. "As long as he is alive, I'll be at his right side."

Smith added that had Ferguson been his partner in the insurance business it would have been unprofitable to Ferguson because he had not been able to write much insurance.

Smith testified that he had been refused membership in the Austin exchange, although he had been a member of the San Antonio exchange. He said the refusal of the exchange to admit him had resulted in his not being able to write bonds. Smith said his policy and those of exchange members did not "gee."

"They blackball you and put you out of business if you don't belong," Smith said. He testified that he had been forced to turn down probable agencies with large insurance companies because local agents were afraid of the business he would write because of his connections.

He would start poison. "As soon as one of the big companies would offer me an agency, the local exchange would start its poison," Smith testified. He said the local agents were not getting the business Smith could get if he was a member of the exchange and that most of the bonds were being written by "out-of-the-city agent."

Smith testified that he knew nothing about job selling. "I have heard lots of talk about it," he said. "Lots of propositions have been offered me. I don't think I could get any one job. I'm trying for eight months to get my brother a job."

Bert Whinsand of Dallas, a former Texas ranger sergeant, testified that he lost his job when Maury Hughes, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, and the Ferguson broke over the Texas National Democratic committee post. Whinsand said he had got his job through Hughes.

Whinsand testified that the day after the Hughes-Ferguson break, his name was taken from his charge and that he spent the next few months until he was discharged "mostly nothing."

Whinsand said he had made an investigation of job selling in Austin and was called to Austin by Hughes to be a report. After the report to the capital he was called by Captain D. E. Hamer to his information and to go back home. Whinsand testified that his report never was filed.

BLUE EAGLE WILL CONTINUE TO FLY AFTER JANUARY 1

By JAMES COPE
(Copyright, 1933, By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(P)—NRA's blue eagle will continue to fly after Dec. 31, and program soon will be announced to extend the president's re-employment agreement for the trades and industries which do not have codes in effect on that day.

The blue eagle agreements were sent out in August. Millions of business men signed their names in a promise to comply with the higher wage, shorter hours requirements until the last day of the year when the agreement of letting these slip away from the re-employment rally for a possible new competitive reduction of wages. Further, and despite the "chiseling" going on, for which blue eagles now are being ordered down daily, officials insist the emblem of co-operation has real trade value.

They cite as evidence two principal recent occurrences: A big retail store chain was deprived of the eagle for paying waitresses hardly more than the required rate. It appealed for reinstatement the same day, and later agreed to pay back wages to all hands for the month.

Another incident being cited is the emblem of co-operation has real trade value. ## ALLRED ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR TEXAS GOVERNORSHIP

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS
WILL ANNOUNCE HIS PLAT-FORM LATER IN CAMPAIGN

DEL RIO, Dec. 16.—(P)—Standing on his record as attorney general of Texas, James V. Allred today was in the field as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of the Lone Star state in the 1934 primaries.

He formally announced his candidacy last night at a dinner given in his honor here by friends. It had been freely predicted in political circles for several weeks that he would become a candidate.

"At the proper time I will meet squarely and discuss frankly every issue before the people," he said, in explaining why he had outlined his platform at this time.

Allred is serving his second term as attorney general. When he took office he was the youngest person ever to be entrusted with the Texas attorney generalship. He is now 34 years old.

"I have studied the needs of Texas," he said. "Almost four years of eventful service as attorney general of this great state have given me a valuable insight into the inner workings of her government. Personally and officially I am proud of the record made in the chief law office of the state."

"With the experience I have gained and the high conception I hold of the duties of public office, I feel that I can render all constructive service should the democratic nomination for governor. I have, therefore, determined to seek that nomination."

However, he said he would continue to attend to his duties and let his campaign wait until spring. "A great deal is being said about a new deal in Texas politics," he said. "This is a very appealing phrase, but as generally uttered it means nothing. It is a slogan in favor of new deal in Texas politics, but it ought to be from a new deck, and with some new dealers in the game."

"The trouble is that lobbyists for the oil companies and the public utilities have been dealing too many jobs. To my mind, this is the greatest issue today before the people of Texas."

"No worthwhile measure is ever introduced in the Legislature but an effort is made to slip a joker into the bill. I favor, therefore, the immediate passage of a strictest lobby regulation that can be placed upon the statute books."

Dr. George W. Cox of Del Rio was toastmaster at the banquet, which was attended by 200 guests. M. R. Kiser, chairman of the Val Verde county democratic executive committee, presided.

Half a dozen smaller merchants who had been deprived of the sign went to great lengths to get it back again.

The plan for continuance is not yet clearly formulated. The simplest method is to proclaim by regulation and public announcement, that continued display binds the employer to stick to the agreement terms, either until his code is ordered down daily, or for a period fixed by the president.

An appeal to all employers to continue, and to the public to keep "buying under the blue eagle," would accompany this.

Another idea being considered is for distribution of new agreement blanks to get signatures all over again.

Where a code has been approved it is proposed that the new blue eagle emblem be sent out, bearing the words "Member Retail Code" or whatever code the employers may belong to. Display of these would constitute voluntary subscription to the code on the part of the employer using it, and would bind him to compliance.

TOM F. HUNTER IS AGAIN IN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP TEXAS

QUESTION OF PROHIBITION
REPEAL WILL NOT BE IN HIS PLATFORM

BROWNWOOD, Dec. 16.—(P)—In formally announcing his candidacy for governor of Texas, Tom F. Hunter declared that the question of prohibition repeal would not be in his platform.

"It is not proper for the governor's race to be decided on whether you are wet or dry," said the Wichita Falls man, who ran third in the last gubernatorial election. "When I am elected governor, the repeal amendment shall be submitted and that will be a proper time to discuss the issue."

"Our is a democratic form of government and there seems to be a call for a vote upon repeal. It would be just as wrong to refuse to submit the amendment upon repeal now as it would have been to refuse to submit the prohibition amendment when it was voted upon."

The candidate for governor who asks appeals on the question of whether he is wet or isn't big enough to run for tick inspector in precinct number seven.

In his address at a meeting called for the purpose of promoting the payment of poll taxes, Hunter last night told of his expectations to pile up many more votes than the 220,000 cast for him last year.

"My platform will be submitted to you in January," he said. "I assure you that in it you will find suggested many reforms vitally essential to the contentment of our people."

He said a social and economic revolution was in progress in this country, involving "our separation from the same plutocracy and autocratic domination" which existed in the time of the revolution of 1776.

"At the ballot box next year we shall determine whether or not the money changers shall continue to escape taxation," he said, turning to his own theories of government. "We shall see whether the gas companies with property values of $387,000,000, and with gross receipts of $68,000,000 for one year, shall escape with only $442,000 paid in state ad valorem, while the plain citizen pays from 10 to 50 times as much in proportion to value or income."

He appealed to those in his audience to pay their poll taxes and prohibit the operations "of paid lobbyists in Austin."
